

PORTFOLIO OBJECTIVE

This model comprises investment vehicles focusing on money market funds to deliver cash like returns. Asset classes you could find in this model are cash plus funds and high-quality ultra short duration fixed interest.

The portfolio seeks to generate a return moderately higher than cash over the short term (1-3 years or more) while maintaining very low volatility and a high level of liquidity. Portfolios will comprise 100% non-equity investments, though weightings may deviate within set parameters, allowing our managers to react to market conditions.

PERFORMANCE

From the start of Q4 2025, the benchmark shown on this factsheet has been updated to the relevant IA Mixed Investment sector. This sector represents a broad range of UK investment portfolios operating with similar risk profiles and investment objectives. Previously, the benchmark shown was a composite of the Bloomberg Developed Markets Stock Index and the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Bond Index, weighted to reflect the risk profile of the model in question. QUARTERLY REVIEW

The first quarter of 2026 began in familiar fashion, with global markets rising 2.7% through January and February as investors carried forward the optimism of 2025. Investors rotated decisively away from US stocks and into international markets. This was a deliberate reallocation, driven by cheaper valuations and a growing willingness to look beyond a US market to source good returns. Emerging markets led the move, rising 8 to 10% as investors rebuilt investments after a prolonged period of under-ownership.

QUARTERLY OUTLOOK

Looking ahead, the outlook for 2026 now hinges on the path of the Iran conflict and, critically, oil prices. The transmission is clear: energy drives inflation, inflation drives interest rates and rates shape growth and market positivity. A likely path is partial de-escalation, where tensions ease enough to stabilise oil without fully resolving the conflict, but the scars of higher oil will remain for some time to come. For markets, stabilising energy prices would ease inflation fears and reopen the path to rate cuts and rallying stocks.
