REVIEW

The first half of 2026 once again demonstrated the remarkable resilience of global markets. Despite heightened geopolitical tensions in the Middle East, renewed inflation concerns and ongoing uncertainty around interest rates, global equities continued to climb to fresh highs. Investors consistently looked beyond short-term headlines, focusing instead on strong corporate earnings and the long-term opportunities presented by Artificial Intelligence. Importantly, this year's rally has been driven more by improving company profits than by expanding valuations, providing a healthier foundation for equity markets than many previous advances. Beneath the surface, however, markets became increasingly selective. Leadership shifted away from the familiar technology giants towards companies supplying the infrastructure underpinning AI, while sukuk returns endured a much more challenging period as investors demanded higher yields in response to inflation and rising government borrowing. These sharp rotations between sectors and asset classes reinforced the value of active management, with diversification proving increasingly important in navigating a more fragmented investment landscape.

PORTFOLIO ACTIVITY

Performance across the Sharia range in June was driven by strong returns from technology, large companies in Europe and our Sukuk strategies, which delivered a rebound after a weaker year to date. Overall, June was characterised by broad-based positive performance, with the majority of underlying holdings contributing. The main detractors were precious metals, which continued their unwind after a period of real strength in 2025 and the start of 2026. The metals weakened amid growing expectations of higher interest rates following a more hawkish Federal Reserve, alongside a strengthening US dollar, both of which weighed on precious metals over the month.

MARKET OUTLOOK

Looking ahead, we remain constructive on the outlook for markets, although we expect the journey to become more volatile as markets become increasingly expensive. Corporate earnings remain supportive; inflation appears to be gradually moderating and investor sentiment continues to favour equities. However, geopolitical tensions, energy prices and the outlook for interest rates are likely to create periods of uncertainty, particularly as markets have already priced in a great deal of optimism. We therefore expect opportunities to emerge alongside bouts of volatility rather than a smooth path higher.

For client portfolios, our focus remains on maintaining broad diversification whilst actively identifying the next areas of long-term opportunity. Artificial Intelligence continues to represent a transformational investment theme, but we are also finding attractive value across healthcare, infrastructure, real assets and sukuk markets. In an environment where market leadership is becoming increasingly fragmented, we believe disciplined active management, combined with a diversified investment approach, remains the most effective way to help clients achieve their long-term financial goals.
