

MARKET

— Review —

Equity markets across the board had a strong start to the year, with US stocks rebounding off December lows to have their best start to a year since 1987. Market volatility came down sharply as robust US jobs data, the possibility of a trade truce between the world's two largest economies and the Fed's signal of a slower path of rate rises, contributed to the bounce back in global stocks.

In general, riskier assets outperformed in Q1, including small-cap stocks, economically sensitive stocks such as those in the energy and industrials sectors and emerging market (EM) equities, helped by a slowdown in the strengthening of the US dollar.

Brexit continued to drive volatility in UK equity and currency markets. The British Parliament did not manage to agree on the kind of Brexit it wants when "indicative" votes were held, offering 8 different options on how the UK should break up with the European Union, after MPs twice rejected Prime Minister Theresa May's Brexit deal. This was despite May's announcement that she would resign if Parliament backed her Brexit plan.

The Fed took a surprisingly dovish stance, signalling that it did not expect to raise rates this year due to concerns about a weaker US economy. This led to a key measure of the US yield curve inverting for the first time in over a decade, a move widely seen as indicator of a coming recession. Concerning manufacturing data from Germany also led to a rally in safe investments and contributed to the nervous sentiment in stock markets at the end of the quarter.

PORTFOLIO ACTIVITY

There were no material changes made to Sharia portfolios over the quarter.

OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

While markets have had a robust start to the year, there remains a fair amount of geopolitical risk that could hamper the progress that's been made repairing last year's losses. We believe it is prudent to remain cautious this year given the extent of Q1's rally which will undoubtedly be hard to replicate. We expect intermittent volatility to persist until some clarity is reached on geopolitical issues such as Brexit and trade, but also as a result of investors taking profits and keeping cash on the sidelines.

We feel there is a strong possibility of a breakthrough in Brexit and trade talks in Q2 which could provide another boost to investor sentiment and, given the amount of cash on the sidelines, result in a significant amount of capital returning to the market, spelling the next leg of the recovery from 2018.

The portfolios' European equity fund contributed the most to performance despite weak European economic data released at the end of the quarter. This was closely followed by EM equities which benefited from stronger risk appetite over the quarter, driven by improved global trade sentiment. Global bond funds contributed positively to performance in what was a strong quarter for fixed income markets.

Detractors to performance came from US and global equity ETFs which marginally underperformed a strong UK-centric benchmark, while exposure to physical gold also detracted as investor appetite for haven assets moderated in Q1.

We favour domestically-focused companies in the UK over the more internationally exposed businesses as we anticipate a soft Brexit, while we have become less positive on European equities due to weak economic data and continued political troubles. We remain constructive on EM assets, particularly as the Fed is now looking increasingly dovish, which should put a ceiling on the US dollar's ascent and help EMs to sustain their strength into the second quarter.

We hope to be as surprised with markets in Q2 as we were in Q1 as we anticipate global headwinds beginning to abate, however it will undoubtedly be another quarter of "hold your breath" and keep one finger on the sell button, whilst electively taking risk in certain areas and maintaining enough cash to deploy should markets take a lurch lower.
